Field note, stream bank near Kibilira.
I came back to this stream bank and made my own record of it.

What I saw:
- The same layered sandstone the earlier report mentions.
- Walking further along the cut, the bank is steepest and the layers are cleanly exposed.
- Grain size is even across the three exposed beds, with the finest layer at the top.

What I recorded:
- Photo 1: the whole exposed face from the far side.
- Photo 2: a close-up of the finest upper layer.
- Video: the bank from one end of the cut to the other.

I did not hammer or pry at the face. This note is my own and sits beside the earlier visit without merging into it.
